the Seeds.

There are lemon squeezers and lemon squeezers, but I wouldn't use one of them. The acid on metal makes the juice taste metallic, and the wooden ones are apt to have a bad taste, says the Philadelphia Times. Besides that, if you use a lemon squeezer, you are sure to get a lot of the essentati oil out of the rind of the lemon, and that is rank poison to the stomach. The best way to get the juice from a lemon is to roll it till it is soft, then cut off the end and insert a sliver knife and scrape the pulp out into a dish. That way you get all the good out of the lemon, and none of the bad. Roll them under your hand on a hard table or put the lemon down on the floor and roll it lightly under your foot; then wipe it off before squeezing. Never leave the seeds of a lemon in the pulp that you take out. The seeds will make the juice very bitter, and in half an hour after taken from the lemon.
